- Haruto Wow, Lucía! This table is full of flowers and candles. What is it?
- Lucía It's an ofrenda. It's for my grandma. She died two years ago.
- Haruto I'm sorry. Is today a sad day for you?
- Lucía Not really. We believe she comes home tonight. So it's a happy day.
- Haruto Why is there a glass of water here?
- Lucía My mom says the trip from the land of the dead is long. So she will be thirsty.
- Haruto And this bread with the bone shapes on it?
- Lucía That's pan de muerto. And these are her favorite tamales.
- Haruto In Japan, we have something similar. It's called Obon.
- Lucía Really? Do you make an altar too?
- Haruto Yes. And we make little horses out of cucumbers for the spirits.
- Lucía Cucumber horses? That's so cute! We use orange flowers to show the way.
- Haruto Can I help you put the petals outside?
- Lucía Of course. Grandma would love to meet you.
