- Ben Yuki, why are the banks closed today? Is it a special day?
- Yuki Yes. It's May 3, Constitution Memorial Day. It's a national holiday.
- Ben Constitution Memorial Day? What does it remember?
- Yuki Japan's constitution started on this day in 1947. It's the basic set of rules for our country.
- Ben Oh, we have Constitution Day in America too. It's in September, but we don't get a day off.
- Yuki Really? No day off? That's too bad!
- Ben Wait, my textbook says November 3, 1946. What happened then?
- Yuki That's the day it was announced. It started six months later.
- Ben So is November 3 a holiday too?
- Yuki Yes, but now it's called Culture Day. Here's a fun fact. May 3 was almost Children's Day!
- Ben Really? Why?
- Yuki Some lawmakers wanted to mix the girls' festival on March 3 and the boys' festival on May 5.
- Ben That's a clever idea! So what do people do today?
- Yuki Most families just enjoy Golden Week. Tomorrow and the next day are holidays too. Let's go to the park!
