No. _____

Name _____

① In 2003, two friends sat in a bar in Melbourne, Australia. Their names were Travis Garone and Luke Slattery. They were talking about old fashions. Many were coming back, but the mustache was not. So they decided to bring it back for one month. In the end, 30 men took part, and each man paid 10 dollars.

④ Today, Movember is a big movement in many countries. Since 2003, it has raised more than 1.8 billion Australian dollars. The money has paid for more than 1,320 health projects for men. But money is only half of the plan. Many men do not like to say, "I feel sick" or "I feel sad." A funny mustache is easy to talk about. When a friend asks about your mo, a real conversation can begin.
