- Haruto Wow, look at that float! Is that a dragon made of flowers?
- Olivia Yes! Every part of a float must be covered with natural things, like flowers, seeds, and bark.
- Haruto Even the black eyes? They don't use paint?
- Olivia No paint at all. People have used things like onion seeds for black.
- Haruto That's amazing. How long has this parade been going on?
- Olivia Since 1890. People here wanted to show friends in the snowy East that flowers bloom in winter.
- Haruto Ha! So it started as a way to show off.
- Olivia Kind of. And here's a funny rule. If January 1 is a Sunday, the parade moves to Monday.
- Haruto Really? Why? Is everyone too sleepy on Sunday?
- Olivia No! In 1893, people didn't want the noise to scare horses outside the churches.
- Haruto There are no horses at church now, but the rule is still here. I love that.
- Olivia After this, we're having Hoppin' John. It's black-eyed peas and rice.
- Haruto Do the peas mean something, like the black beans in Japan?
- Olivia Yes. Each pea is a coin, so eat a lot and get rich this year!
