Arash Yuna, do you want to come to my house on Friday? It's Nowruz.

Yuna Nowruz? What's that?

Arash It's the Persian New Year. It starts on the first day of spring.

Yuna New Year in spring? That sounds nice. What time does it start?

Arash This year, at 10:46 in the morning. It changes every year.

Yuna Really? Not at midnight?

Arash No. It follows the sun. We wait at a special table and count down.

Yuna What's on the table?

Arash Seven things that start with S in Persian. Like apples, garlic, and green sprouts.

Yuna Garlic on a New Year table? That's funny!

Arash It means good health. And my grandma gives everyone new money.

Yuna Just like otoshidama in Japan! I'd love to come.
