Listen here

- Tom Mei, what are we doing tonight? Is there a party?
- Mei Not really. In Japan, New Year's Eve is a family night.
- Tom Oh. So what do families do?
- Mei First, we eat toshikoshi soba. It's buckwheat noodles.
- Tom Why noodles on New Year's Eve?
- Mei Long noodles mean a long life. Some people also say it cuts away bad luck.
- Tom I like that. What's next?
- Mei We watch Kohaku on TV. It's a big music show. Singers are on a red team or a white team.
- Tom A singing battle? That sounds fun!
- Mei Then near midnight, we can hear the temple bell. It rings 108 times.
- Tom 108 times? Can we go and ring it?
- Mei Sure. The temple near here lets visitors ring it. Bring a warm coat!
- Tom Great. What do we say at midnight?
- Mei Akemashite omedeto! It means Happy New Year.
