- Emma Wow, look at all this chocolate! Why are there so many people here?
- Haruto It's for Valentine's Day. In Japan, women usually give chocolate to men.
- Emma Only women? In Canada, my dad gives my mom flowers every year.
- Haruto Really? Here, men give gifts back on March 14. We call it White Day.
- Emma That's interesting. So who gets all this chocolate?
- Haruto Some of it is honmei choco. That's for someone you really love.
- Emma And the small boxes over there?
- Haruto Those might be giri choco. People give them to co-workers to say thank you.
- Emma Chocolate for everyone at work? That sounds expensive!
- Haruto It is. Now many people just buy expensive chocolate for themselves.
- Emma I like that idea. Can I give chocolate to my friends, too?
- Haruto Sure. That's tomo choco. My sister made thirty for her class last year.
- Emma Thirty? OK, I'll make some for you, too. You can pay me back on White Day!
